HIGH FREQUENCY SIGNAL PEAK DETECTOR

- ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A signal power detector includes an input coupling circuit and a rectifying operational amplifier. The input coupling circuit is operably coupled to receive a signal and to convert the signal into a first input and a rectifying input. The rectifying operational amplifier is operably coupled to receive the first input and the rectifying input and to produce therefrom a rectified output signal that represents a peak of the received signal.